Miscellaneous Information

On multiple occasions while Morris was gaming at licensed facilities, he added money to a wager after the time for wagering had expired and the result of the hand was known (referred to as “past posting” wagers). Surveillance staff at a casino in Philadelphia began reviewing Morris’s conduct on May 1, 2022, after a Table Games Supervisor suspected he had past posted a $1,000 wager at a craps table. The review confirmed that during two separate rolls, he past-posted $1,000 wagers. As a result, he illegally won $2,000 on each roll. After winning the second roll, he left the casino without cashing in his gaming chips. The Pennsylvania State Police were notified and, two days later, staff of the casino notified surveillance staff of another casino located in Philadelphia, about Morris’s actions. The surveillance staff then reviewed Morris’s activity on that day and determined that he past posted wagers twice, resulting in a $1,455 loss to the casino. Staff then reviewed Morris’s gaming activity from prior dates, which revealed that he past-posted craps wagers on six different dates. Morris’s actions created a total loss of $35,871 for the casino. On May 4, 2022, members of the Pennsylvania State Police arrested him at the casino, and he pleaded guilty to Unlawful to take/claim/manipulate w/intent to defraud/cheat, a second-degree felony.
